

Contract/Contract to Hire

As your business changes and grows so typically does the need for employees and the skills they bring to the table. Contract or "interim" employees can help you manage those challenges by allowing you to bring on the people you need when you need them, without adding permanent staff thus reducing your payroll cost and human resources exposure.

Additional benefits include the opportunity to assess their skills and their ability to fit into your organization affording you the option of transitioning the employee to your permanent payroll when and if the need presents itself.

Fusion Staffing has been helping clients staff for "interim" requirements in specialized disciplines as diverse as accounting, engineering, information technology, sales, and interim senior management professionals utilizing the same quality recruiting techniques utilized in all our search process.
